

Cool and Dry Continues Thursday, Rain and Some Snow Possible Friday Night and Saturday Night

Key Forecast Points

- Cool and dry weather will continue Thursday through Friday afternoon.
- Next round of rain expected late Friday through Sunday night with a possible snow/wintry mix in some areas both Friday night and Saturday night when temperatures fall to near freezing.
- Best chances for accumulating snow will be north of I-40 and on the Plateau, where a few tenths of an inch up to around an inch will be possible.
- Tennessee River levels will remain high from last week's rainfall